A THIRTY YEAR JOURNEY ON WOMEN'S RIGHTS

Jagori turned 30 this year. It was set up in 1984 by eminent feminists with a vision to create a space for women to reflect their realities, articulate their experience of oppression and find ways of fighting it. They dreamt of taking feminism outside of the cities to reach out far into the rural areas.

Through these three decades of activism, feminist consciousness building, nurturing women's spaces and movement building, several women activists from different walks of life shaped the collective and its vision.

One thinks of the many journeys of struggle, of hope, of equality, of friendships and of celebration. A few lines capture well this journey...

*"I have stepped beyond the boundaries
Travelled from the hearth to the threshold
We cannot be stopped anymore
We have pledged to conquer the world."*

Jagori Notebook: 1998

"When we turned twenty (2004) our reflections included:

'In the last 20 years Jagori has increasingly become a women's space. Many women and women's groups visit us. They feel a sense of belonging and warmth here. We have been able to reach out and respond to the needs of the groups working with rural and urban poor women. On the other hand, many people have come to us to help us with our work and find a place for them. A place where women can sit and discuss their personal and work problems, think about their future, pick up materials to read and remain in contact and build friendships'

Living Feminisms, Jagori (2004), Page 18

Our sister organisation Jagori Grameen is located in Rakkar, Dharamshala. and works with communities to address discrimination, social exclusion, collective dignity of the most marginalised. The secretariat of the Sangat network is housed at Jagori.

We continue to dream of an inclusive world – of equality, freedoms, peace and justice - a world free of violence, prejudice and discrimination; a world respectful of diversities - of different genders, sexual orientation and diverse ways of living and being.

चाहता है दिल
कि वक्त की हथेलियों से
चुरा लूँ फुर्सत के कुछ पल
उड़ जाऊँ दूर आकाश में
खोलकर मन के दरवाजे
बाहों में भर लूँ
बादल की रफ़्तार
हवाओं का हौसला
बारिश का साहस
हो जाऊँ आज़ाद!

on Women's Mobility (2012)

Our archives reflect our dreams - The Jagori Notebook on Women and Work (2009) :

तुम कितनी ही कोशिश कर लो,
तोड़ न पाओगे इस बार-
मेरे हौसलों की उड़ान,
खोने ना दूँगी खुद को,
अपने काम को नया नाम,
नया आयाम दूँगी,
और दूँगी एक नई पहचान,
अपनी आत्मा को-
जो मुझसे शुरु होकर
खत्म होगी मुझी में।

Try as much as you can
This time you will not break
The flight of my spirit
I will not lose myself
I will give my work a new name,
A new dimension,
And I will give a new identity
To my soul -
For what begins within me
Will also end within me.

This past year, we have witnessed legal and policy reforms and a spurt in responses to the issue of women's safety and freedoms. Young women focused the attention of the world to notions of autonomy, mobility and bodily integrity. Alongside, feminists have continued to raise concerns around women survivors' access to justice and reparation, and question the culture of impunity and demand accountability to ending all forms of violence against women and girls.

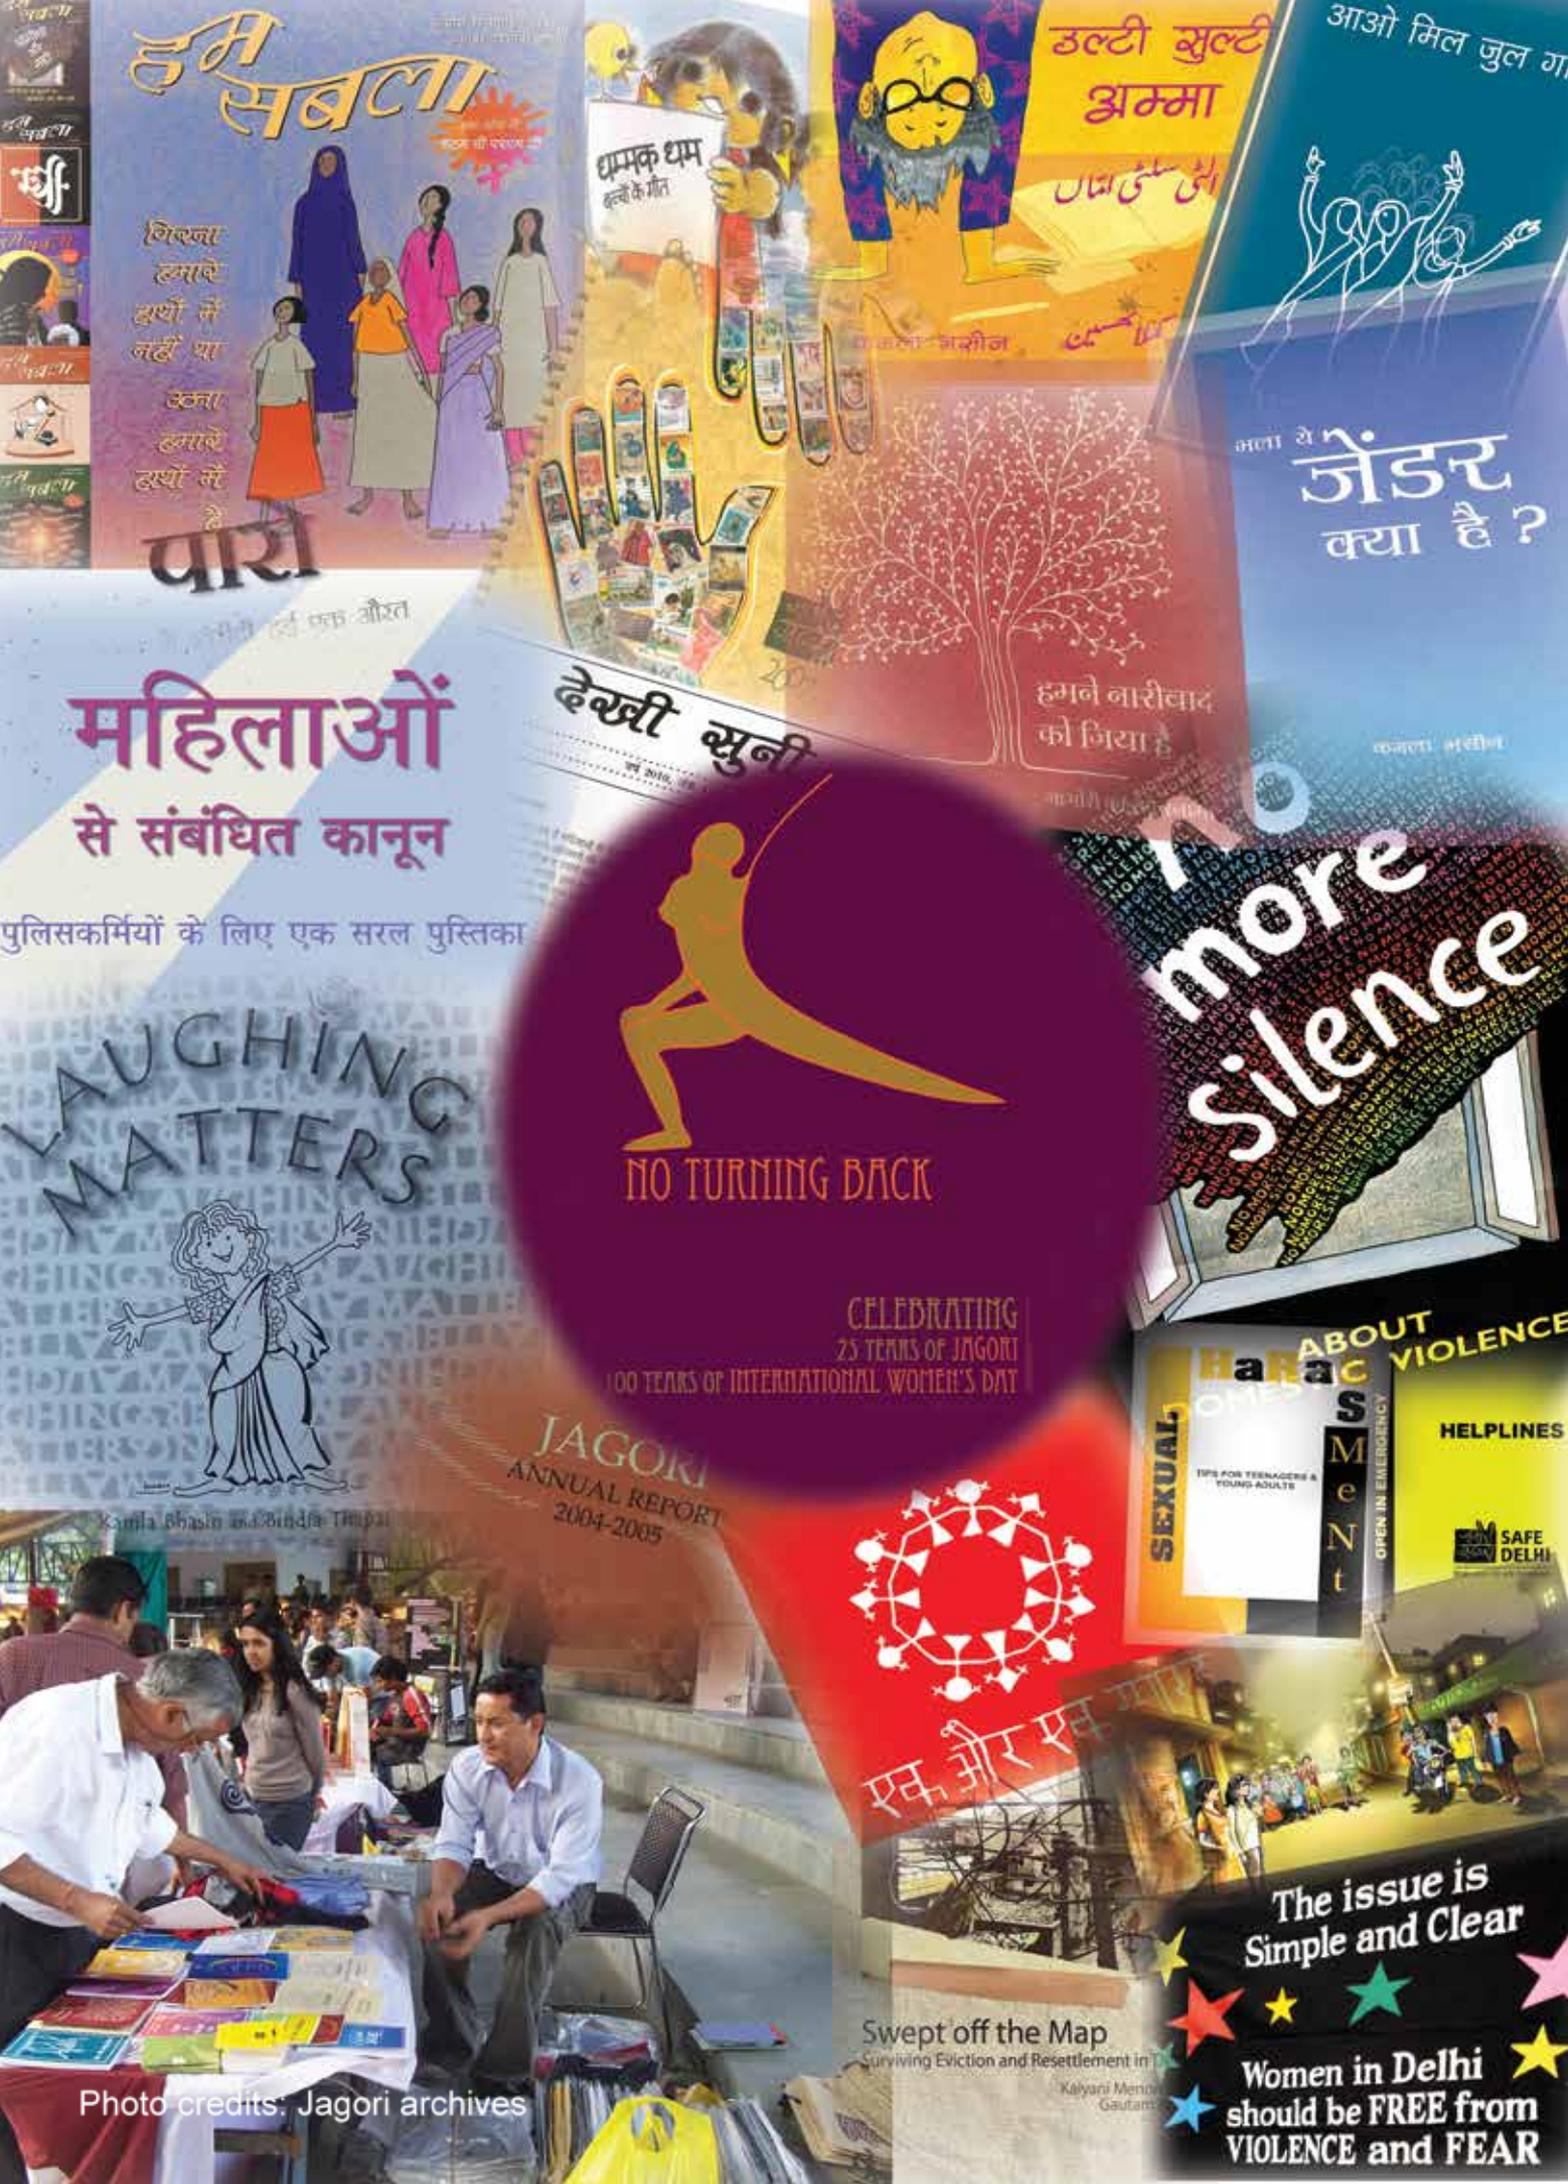

Jagori has been engaged in several campaigns, including the One Billion Rising. Last year, we partnered Safetipin on the use of an innovative technology tool for women's safety.

These magnificent 30 years have only been possible due to the untiring efforts of many feminists - founding members, board members, Jagori collective and colleagues, community leaders, survivor groups, friends, interns, volunteers, advisors, partners, and most importantly, the leadership of young women and men in the communities we work in, who are forging new pathways.

We are grateful!

STRATEGY 1

FEMINIST RESEARCH AND KNOWLEDGE BUILDING

Thirty years ago, Jagori set up its feminist resource centre – to create a space for feminist expressions and to weave in new dimensions of feminist thought and philosophy.

Today, the resource centre is a hub of both archival and contemporary information on women's rights. It reaches out widely to the collectives in the resettlement urban colonies, activists, development professionals, trainers, researchers, academics, film makers, journalists, and several others across the country and beyond.

1. SCOPING STUDY ON WOMEN'S ACCESS TO BASIC SERVICES

A scoping study was undertaken to identify gender gaps in infrastructure, services and women's safety in seven new blocks of the Bawana resettlement colony in North Delhi. The sixteen-month study comprised exploratory visits, information camps and resource mapping, followed by in-depth interviews with key informants, focus group discussions and women's safety audit walks. Thirty-five women and youth were trained as para-researchers and learned about the study tools that were used.

GENDERED IMPACT OF INADEQUATE AND POORLY MAINTAINED SERVICES

- There is an increased demand on women and girls' time and unpaid labour as they are primarily responsible for carrying out household work. This is coupled with inadequate and poorly maintained infrastructure and services including water, sanitation, drainage, waste management, electricity, transport and health. This affects the overall productivity and efficiency of women and girls.
- The physical and social factors that make women and girls feel unsafe in public spaces includes poor design (uneven roads, common entry of community toilet complex (CTCs) for men and women, no attention in design for older/pregnant/women with disabilities, no support for alternate toilet seats for children, uncovered sections on drains, unsafe electricity connections) and poor maintenance of services (broken doors and latches, no proper dustbins for menstrual waste disposal, no monitoring by the higher government authorities). This has serious consequences on women and girls' access to essential services and leads to violation of their rights to safety, privacy and dignity.
- There is increased vulnerability of women and girls to incidents of sexual harassment while accessing water sources, inside and outside toilet complexes, in the transit routes to schools and workplaces, in parks, and in secluded areas such as narrow lanes and open fields. Further, the constant presence of certain groups of men and boys loitering in and around CTCs, playing cards with caretakers and hanging around school premises makes women and girls feel uncomfortable and violates their privacy. Also, the notions of honour and shame influences ways in which women and girls handle 'risk' situations and report harassment. They often refrain from reporting incidents of sexual harassment to family and relatives due to the fear of restriction and control on their mobility and being blamed for the incident. Lack of effective police surveillance accentuates this fear and increases their vulnerability.
- Lack of access to adequate and well maintained essential services results in serious health problems for women and girls, including bladder inflations, stomach aches, kidney stones, skin problems, urinary tract infections, jaundice, nausea and anxiety attacks for going for open defecation during night. As there is no dispensary, women and girls have to approach local doctors whom they cannot afford, but are forced to consult during menstrual pains. As they live in the periphery of the city, they have limited work options. The available ones are not only poor paying but also affect their health. Working in factories such as button and plastic factory requires women factory workers to strain their eyes for long periods of time. This results in problems such as severe headaches and poor eyesight. Their employers cut their wages in case of delays in reaching work places and there is always a fear of losing one's job in cases of absence due to illness.

Six interns completed their placements with Jagori during this period. Community fellowship was provided to 12 community representatives, including one woman and 11 youth peer educators from Madanpur Khadar, Bawana and Molarband.

INTERN-SPEAK

"It was a great learning experience for me as I was able to move beyond the theoretical knowledge of the textbooks and enter the real world of experience and understand challenges faced by women and other marginalised sections of society."

- Tanvi (October-November, 2013)

"I am an experienced writer so I was glad to be able to help in that capacity whenever I could. On the other hand, I am not an expert in Indian feminism so it was great to be at Jagori and immerse myself in the field. I was able to learn a lot about gender-based violence and women's rights issues in India and I am confident that this knowledge will weave itself into my literary and scholarly pursuits."

- Priya Purohit, Indiana University (June-August 2013)

"Working with Jagori held relevance for me because I might want to work in this sector in the future. I got a good perspective of the actual work that goes on in an NGO, behind the scenes. I also got to be part of a really welcoming work environment, and I have learned and picked up values that will be of use to me as a working professional, especially in regard to communication skills and sensitivity."

- Jayesh M. Koushik, Delhi University (May-July 2013)

STRATEGY 2

SUPPORTING WOMEN'S LEADERSHIP AND AGENCY

Jagori continues supporting women and youth community leaders through a peer educator model in five communities in Delhi - Badarpur, Bawana, Madanpur Khadar, Malviya Nagar and Molarband. Twelve community collectives reached out to over 15,000 women, youth and men in communities and to key functionaries through meetings and trainings, creating cross- learning platforms.

KEY HIGHLIGHTS

- A committee on essential services - comprising members from the NGO Alliance, women members of the local Resident Welfare Association (RWA), and youth - was formed in Bawana. They initiated a joint 'Safai Evam Jagrukta Abhiyan' (sanitation and awareness campaign) wherein four public parks and drains were cleaned with support from the 'Safai Karamcharis' (sanitation workers) in their areas. Members of the Nigrani Samiti (monitoring committee) held meetings with local stakeholders, including police and the Councillor for cleanliness and installation of lamp posts and due monitoring by the local beat constables.
- The community collectives participated in 9 NGO alliance meetings; 12 meetings with local service providers and 9 information dissemination camps were organised.
- 839 queries were dealt with at the weekly Community Clinic on the Public Distribution System (PDS); 767 complaints and 112 queries were filed by the community under the Right to Information (RTI) Act 2005 on PDS, water, sanitation, other essential services and social security.

- Campaigns were held on International Women’s Day, One Billion Rising, 16 Days of Activism and Global Anti Street Sexual Harassment Week across all communities and at the city level. Creative expressions - puppetry, film festivals, public meetings, poster and post card campaigns were undertaken.
- The women’s collective worked closely with the local ‘Thana Committee’ (committees constituted at police stations to discuss complaints from local people) covering three police stations: Jaitpur, Badarpur, and Malviya Nagar. Regular interface with local police officials ensured addressing women’s safety concerns and redressal.
- Using the ‘Safetipin’ phone app technology, the youth group undertook 50 safety audits covering market areas, government schools, bus terminals and other patches. Recommendations were compiled and presented.
- 100 youth from 3 communities supported by Jagori engaged with the ‘UnManifesto’ organised by Commutiny: the Youth Collective, along with 44 other organisations across the country, resulting in 7,000 promises focusing on women’s safety and access to services and infrastructure.

RAISING VOICES, RISING ACTIONS

Two short films on masculinity and safety in public spaces were produced by youth with support from Commutiny-the Youth Collective.

YOUTH FELLOWS SPEAK OUT

"After getting associated with Jagori, I could see a wide array of opportunities and scope for work. I am now more aware of myself and my actions. Earlier while travelling in a bus, I never considered if I was causing discomfort to a fellow woman traveller. But now I have started paying more attention. Now, when I have a conversation on issues of women's safety with the boys of my age, they listen and do not retort. And to those boys who express a disagreement, mock me and call me 'Jagori', I respond saying 'Let us all awaken and rise'."

-Rahul, 19 years, community fellow with Badarpur youth group

"I was quite a reluctant speaker earlier, so much that I hardly ever spoke in my own house. But after associating with Jagori, I have found a voice of my own – a voice full of confidence. Currently, I provide support in case work and counselling. I try to understand and recognize various forms of violence. Accompanying women to the police stations and making us heard and taken note of gives a huge sense of courage and confidence. Now I go to the police stations by myself. I also got the opportunity to participate the Gender Basic Course organised by Jagori. Currently I am pursuing a Bachelors' degree in Social Work and I have decided that I will also study further. In the future I see myself as a feminist counsellor."

-Poonam, 18 years, community fellow for case work in Bawana

"There has been a huge boost in my self confidence after I joined Jagori as a fellow. I often used to wonder 'Why do men have all the rights?'"But now I know women have rights as well - right to education, right to freedom of speech and expression - the right to life. I have now realised my right to education and at present I am studying for a Bachelor's in Social Work. I plan to study further."

-Sampa, 18 years, community fellow for adolescent girls' group from Bawana

STRATEGY 3

PERSPECTIVE AND CAPACITY DEVELOPMENT ON FEMINIST PRINCIPLES AND STRATEGIES

“Great learning environment, which provided space and confidence for each one of us to open up, actively participate in discussions and share experiences. At the same time everyone was heard – a classic example of gender sensitive equal environment”

- Participant, Gender and Development Workshop, Aga Khan Foundation and Jagori

Jagori continues to use training as a means of empowerment and building a feminist perspective on a range of issues. Challenging notions of patriarchy and misogyny, fostering critical consciousness on gender equality and women’s rights are among the key messages.

A. GENDER AND WOMEN’S RIGHTS TRAININGS

The following activities were organised:

- A five-day Gender Basic Course with 39 participants from 22 organisations from 9 states.
- A thematic workshop on Muslim Women’s Rights with 21 participants from 10 organisations from 5 states.
- Jagori provided technical support to the State Human Rights Commission, Government of Rajasthan, on safety audits for a transport sector campaign being planned in Jaipur. After a couple of exploratory meetings, a two-day perspective building and tool sharing workshop was conducted with 50 participants of select government departments, police and public transport.

- 37 short training sessions on women's rights and empowerment were held with 1,300 participants. Overall 1,500 women, youth and men from 32 organisations and groups from 10 states of India including Andhra Pradesh, Assam, Delhi, Gujarat, Madhya Pradesh, Maharashtra, Meghalaya, Rajasthan, Uttar Pradesh, and Uttarakhand were trained in this period on feminist principles, women's rights and gender justice. - At the registration camps held by Astitva, 141 domestic workers were registered under the Rashtriya Swasthya Beema Yojana (RSBY). Other activities included intensive field visits, community meetings and direct support through case work; 27 cases of violence were reported during this period in Dehradun.
- Through MKSK, domestic workers were included in the social security committee for workers of the unorganised sector by the Rajasthan Government. Three awareness raising sessions were held with 182 domestic workers from 23 slums and colonies in Rajasthan.
- Parichiti organised women domestic workers in six locations and held regular meetings on women's safety in public places and access to 'izzat' monthly season tickets with various functionaries including station masters, railway officers and local councillors and officials in Kolkata.
- In Delhi, 800 women domestic workers were reached out to in Madanpur Khadar. Six weekly short sessions, 5 bi-monthly day-long sessions and two film screenings were held to build the leadership 30 women domestic workers. The group attended consultations and public lectures organised by the International Labour Organization and others, visited their peers in Jaipur, and celebrated the National Domestic Workers Day, organised by Chetnalaya.

- This year, 17 federation leaders from different districts in Koderma, Hazaribagh and Kesla undertook exposure visits to Delhi, and participated in larger campaigns for universal pension right, and ending violence against women (VAW) (the One Billion Rising campaign). The PRADAN-Jagori partnership is being seen as a unique process of transforming gender relations at the community level.

PHULWATI BAI – Breaking the Barriers

Thirty-nine-year-old Phulwati Bai went through a process of self reflection and change after having attended capacity building trainings. She began questioning the traditional gender roles and norms which curtailed her growth and well-being. She found certain practices and beliefs - like women making land infertile while working on them during menstruation - to be baseless. She challenged this idea by planting watermelon seeds and watering the yield even during menstruation cycles. Her hard work yielded results and that year she earned an overall profit of INR 20,000! Phulwati Bai is now a role model for other women who are trying to break the societal barriers and move towards leading a more independent and self-sufficient life.

STRATEGY 4

PROVIDING SUPPORT SERVICES TO WOMEN SURVIVORS OF VIOLENCE

Jagori provides helpline and direct support services to women survivors of violence. It provides information and referrals to shelters, legal aid and the justice delivery system, besides providing immediate and short-term emotional and social support. In communities the women are supported by the network of women survivors of violence.

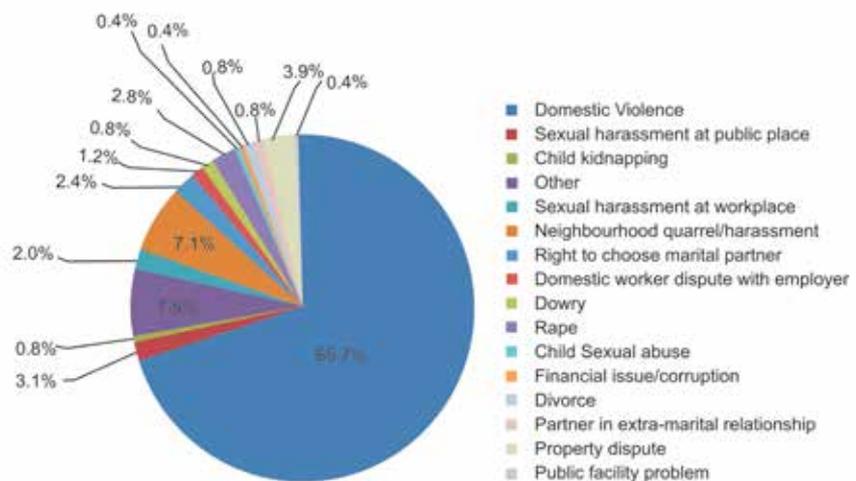

Over the years, not only has there been an increase in the number of reported cases of violence against women, but there has also been a marked diversification in the kinds of cases fielded by Jagori. For example, the pervasiveness of smart phones and the dangerous ease of data dissemination in the internet era have resulted in novel forms of gendered violence, making young women in particular susceptible to cyber-based manipulation. Additionally, the entry of more women in the workplace, while certainly a step in the right direction towards a more egalitarian-minded republic, has also resulted in a new and complex arena for sexual harassment.

A) INTERVENTIONS TO END VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN

- This year there was a significant increase in the numbers of women approaching Jagori for direct support. Registered complaints included issues of domestic violence, dowry-related violence, desertion, sexual violence in intimate relations, illegal confinement, sexual harassment at workplace, rights violation of domestic workers, and right to choice of partners.

- Jagori provided support to more than 1,300 women facing violence - 482 women were first time visitors to the drop-in centre, 695 women received support via the phone helpline services, and over 130 women via emails.
- 31 women were referred to Jagori by the Delhi legal Aid Services Authority and other lawyers.
- Cases referred are from the field areas of Malviya Nagar, Badarpur, Madanpur Khadar and Bawana JJ Colonies, Delhi and from sister organisations across the country including CanSupport, Vimochana (Bangalore), Human Rights Law Network (HRLN) (Delhi), Swayam (Kolkata), Satark Nagrik Sangathan (Delhi), Saheli (Delhi), Azad Foundation (Delhi) and mahila panchayats (women's collectives set up by the Delhi Commission for Women).

Complaints by 254 women: walk-in cases: April 2013-March 2014

Status of 254 women: walk-in cases: April 2013-March 2014

Support provided to 228 walk-in cases of women survivors:
April 2013-March 2014

- Jagori has strengthened its referral services through constant liaison and networking with other women and child rights organisations. Jagori referred 56 women survivors to sister organisations for additional support services.
- 4 support group meetings were held with 30 women survivors of violence on group building, transforming their lives to live with dignity and ensuring recovery and rehabilitation.
- Jagori is upgrading its current support services for women survivors with the award from the Roland Berger Foundation (2013). This includes introduction of upgraded counselling and case referral protocols, development of materials, mental health services, training of para health and para legal workers. Support services have been initiated in 3 new communities of Badarpur, Molarband and Malviya Nagar and 2 centres established.

B) CAPACITY BUILDING OF SERVICE PROVIDERS AND OTHER STAKEHOLDERS

- Jagori has provided accompaniment support to 6 mahila panchayats in Delhi. A two-day capacity building workshop with 25 counsellors of five mahila panchayats on issues of gender based violence and laws related to women was organised in December.
- A session was held with staff members of Shape India on the issue of VAW and legal rights of women, as a part of the mahila panchayats' refresher course.

- Jagori trained 30 nyaya sakhis (paralegal workers) of nyaya adalats (alternative dispute resolution mechanisms) working with Jagori Grameen in Himachal Pradesh on feminist counselling. The participants shared that the sessions on principles and strategies of feminist counselling helped them deepen their understanding and nuance their counselling work.
- Jagori organised a day-long training with members of the NGO Alliance in Madanpur Khadar on Protection of Women from Domestic Violence (PWDV) Act, 2005 and Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 2013. Fourteen members from seven organisations participated in this training.
- Jagori was a panellist for a session on Violence against Women at the National Consultation on Food Security organised by Anandi, Ahmedabad.

C) COMMUNITY LEVEL INTERVENTIONS

(as part of the mentoring process of women survivors of violence)

- In Bawana, eight support group meetings have been held with about 20 women survivors each, on issues like VAW and women's health, government schemes available to the community women on essential services, amendments in the rape laws, PWDV Act etc.
- 16 women survivors from Khadar support group were selected and undergoing skill building training to become barefoot case workers. Issues covered so far include gender, patriarchy, violence against women, sexuality, and legal rights of women including PWDV Act, 2005, Sexual Harassment at Workplace (Prevention, Prohibition and Redressal) Act, 2013, and the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 2013.
- Intense engagement of community women and youth with the police in synergy with the police directives, has laid the ground for deeper collaboration. Seven meetings have been held last year with the local police stations of Madanpur Khadar, Narela and Sarita Vihar to develop strategies to deal with cases of VAW in these communities. Women from the communities have been participating in these meetings regularly and sharing their experiences directly with the police. The youth collective of Madanpur Khadar also initiated a meeting with the police on self-defence and safety of women.
- Jagori conducted over 12 trainings with police officers and beat constables at districts levels – South East and Daryaganj Thana, Delhi in this period.

- Jagori participated in 25 Thana (Malviya Nagar, Badarpur, Hauz Khas and Jaitpur Thana) and SUPWC (Special Unit for Protection of Women and Children) meetings to share concerns raised by community women on cases of violence against women, and regarding vulnerable areas within the wards, which needed immediate and effective monitoring mechanisms. Selected women representative from the community watch groups also attended these meetings and shared the gaps in police services.

D) PARTNERSHIPS

- As part of the NGO Committee, Jagori attended five meetings with the SUPWC to discuss the implementation of the Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs) in Delhi and to share experiences in dealing with the police while referring cases.
- As part of the AMAN Network with other national level organisations working for the effective implementation of the PWDV Act, 2005, Jagori is participating in a study to understand challenges faced by women accessing the Act and counselling and legal support.
- Jagori is supporting a research scholar to conduct a study on domestic violence with women survivors of violence who have taken support from the Jagori helpline and counselling centre.
- Jagori was invited to participate in a meeting on the implementation of the Sexual Harassment at Workplace Act organised by the Department of Women and Child Development, Government of Delhi. Jagori focussed on the inclusion of the domestic workers in the unorganised sector under the Act and how its implementation would be beneficial for domestic workers.
- Jagori has been supporting the Network of Child Rights Groups in consideration of not lowering the age of juveniles under the Juvenile Justice Act.
- Jagori was also part of the NGO delegation to review the police training curriculum, coordinated by the Police Training School in Delhi. Jagori submitted recommendations to include rigorous gender sensitisation training especially as part of the induction and refresher course, instead of just one-off sessions.

SANGAT PROJECT

A) WORKSHOPS

During the year Sangat, in collaboration with Ekta - Madurai; Jagori Grameen - Himachal Pradesh and Swayam – Kolkata, enhanced capacities of over 100 men and women in the region with three intensive two-week courses on gender, human rights, just governance, sustainable development and women's empowerment, in Hindi (May 2013), Bangla (June 2013) and Tamil (February 2014). These courses were organised in response to a strong demand from grassroots activists who do not know English but are keen to build capacities through Sangat's feminist courses. For the first time, men were invited to participate in the Bangla course, following positive experiences in the Hindi course.

Sangat in collaboration with Action Aid Bhopal organised a National Thematic Workshop entitled 'Challenging Patriarchy and Violence against Women and Girls (VAWG)' in August 2013, to assess strategies to stop VAWG and plan future campaigns. Focus was on ensuring justice for all survivors of gender violence while continuing to address root causes of patriarchal violence.

Three workshops on personal tools for women's safety were organised to empower women to defend themselves from violence.

B) NETWORKING

Sangat continued to expand outreach and awareness on gender justice, peace and sustainable development through networking and partnerships with The One Billion Rising Campaign, People's SAARC, and Peace Women across the Globe amongst others.

C) CULTURAL EVENTS

Sangat, Jagori and other organisations partnered with the International Association of Women in Radio and Television (IAWRT) to organise the 10th India-IAWRT Film Festival in Delhi, March 2014. It was followed by a day-long seminar, 'Hum Gunahgaar

Auratein/ We Sinful women: Feminist Cultures of Resistance: Conversations on Art and Activism' to celebrate International Women's Day on 8th March. The event was conceptualised and coordinated by feminist historian Dr. Uma Chakravarty and film editor Anupama Chandra, and attended by activists, artists, academics, and the people of Delhi.

This year Sangat's interaction with students and young people expanded manyfold through its participation as speakers and panelists in discussions, seminars, and events. Students were, in turn, inspired to organise debates, discussions, film screenings, poetry and dance competitions on the theme of ending VAWG. Following the Nirbhaya incident in Delhi in December 2012, Sangat joined several other Delhi groups and young activists to reach out to the public and spread messages on violence against women through a public event, 'Enough! No More Violence against India's Daughters', on 28th April, 2014. Many of these events resulted in increased visibility and reports in the media.

Sangat was also the key resource, speaking at several short talks and seminars on issues related to gender and patriarchy. These helped connect to the public at large and to a variety of people from students and academics to police officials and NGO workers. Over 4,000 people were reached through these events. Sangat's collaboration with MANAS led to an effective gender sensitisation drive reaching about 100,000 auto drivers, who have pledged to support the campaign to end violence and help women in distress.
